DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-5 and 7-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Freedman (U.S. Patent 4,839,829).

Regarding claim 1, Freedman discloses an automated typesetting system used for production of a commercially-printed product according to a customer's corporate identity specifications, comprising:

means for creating, designing, storing, accessing, and updating an electronic graphic template of the product according to the customer's corporate identity specifications (Fig. 1A; column 8, lines 21-45 & 56-68);

means for creating, designing, programming, storing, accessing, and updating an electronic database file, wherein said database file is programmed to receive and store populating data used to populate said template and said database file is further programmed with instructions and parameters used to format said populating data on said template according to the customer's corporate identity specifications (column 7, lines 37-52); means for inputting said populating data into said database file as database records (Figure 1A, terminals 14 and 38); means for automatically populating said populating data into said template (column 8, lines 45-48); and means for automatically formatting said populating data on said template according to the customer's corporate identity specifications to form a populated and formatted template (column 8, lines 40-44). Freedman refers to the programmed computer 20 for storage of database containing the information for a job. The programmed computer also holds the software for running this application.

Regarding claim 2, Freedman discloses an automated typesetting system of claim 1 further comprising a means for automatically printing said populated and formatted template (column 7, lines 58-61).

Regarding claim 3, Freedman discloses an automated typesetting system of claims 1 or 2, in which said template is comprised of at least one block designed to contain populating data in the form of text or graphics. In column 8, lines 36-44 Freedman teaches different manuscript formats like book and newsletter. Such formats allow for text and graphics. He also teaches accepting scanned graphics in column 8, lines 19-21.

Regarding claim 4, Freedman discloses an automated typesetting system of claims 1 or 2, in which said database file is comprised of at least one field designed to contain populating data and at least one field designed to contain instructions and parameters used to format said populating data on said template according to the customer's corporate identity specifications. Freedman considers in column 7, lines 37-58 all parameters for printing a job. Such parameters in the printing environment include data and format information.

Regarding claim 5, Freedman discloses an automated typesetting system of claims 1 or 2, in which said means for creating, designing, storing, accessing, and updating an electronic graphic template comprises a computer software program and said means for creating, designing, programming, storing, accessing, and updating an electronic database file comprises a computer software program (column 3, lines 57-62). The programmed computer 20 contains the software/program for executing the function described in his invention.

Regarding claim 7, Freedman discloses an automated typesetting system of claims 1 or 2 further comprising a means for electronically proof checking and correcting said populating data prior to automatically populating said populating data into said template (column 9, lines 18-22).

Regarding claim 8, Freedman discloses an automated typesetting system of claims 1 or 2, in which said means for automatically populating said populating data into said template further comprises a means for fully populating said template should said populating data not fully populate said template (column 11, lines 36-38). Freedman also teaches that print manager has the ability to add additional information in the computer such as special stock dimension, color or plate size to complete the job.

Regarding claim 9, Freedman discloses an automated typesetting system of claims 1 or 2 interactively coupled with an automated order tracking, billing, shipping, and inventory control system (column 8, lines 1-9; column 10, lines 15-24, 36-38, 55-63; column 11, lines 1-50).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Freedman in view of Cupps et al. (U.S. Patent 5,991,739).

Regarding claim 6, Freedman does not disclose an automated typesetting system of claims 1 or 2, in which said means for inputting said populating data into said database file as database records comprises:

a Web site programmed to receive said populating data; and a populating data import means for automatically importing said populating data into said database file as database records.

Cupps et al. discloses an Internet on line order service wherein a customer is given access to a web site to facilitate ordering (column 2, lines 19-38; column 4, lines 60-68 and column 5, lines 1-5). Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to modify Freedman wherein the on-line communication link is the Internet. It would have been obvious to a person skilled in the art to combine teaching of Cupps et al. with Freedman et al. to provide customers with greater access to the system from remote locations.
